

Tolentino Art Collection Brings Total of $491,377

Venetian Gothic Column
Fetches $9,200—Holden
Sale Begins.

The sale of the Raoul Tolentino collection of artistic properties was ended yesterday afternoon in the American Art Galleries. Total sales for the six afternoons and one evening were $491,377.

W. R. Hearst made several of the more important purchases yesterday, adding to his collection Venetian Gothic carved columns of the early fifteenth century for $3,000, the highest price of the closing session. He also bought a Roman marble table of the second century B. C. for $25, a Roman marble candelstick of the same period for $4,500, an Umbrian Gothic marble bowl of the early fifteenth century for $1,000, an early Gothic carved font of the thirteenth century for $1,200 and a pair of Roman porphyry columns for $1,600.

Other sales at the closing session included those of W. W. Seaman, who obtained a pair of Venetian carved and painted wooden dogs of the sixteenth century for $1,000 and a pair of Venetian Gothic stone lions of the early fifteenth century for $1,200. Leone Ricci bought an Egyptian granite head for $700.

The sale of the mezzotints, portraits, etchings, bronze statues and medals collected by the late Edwin B. Holden, for some time president of the Grollier Club, was opened last night in the same galleries. Sales amounted to $12,340.50. Among the purchases made by Max Williams were these: Mezzotint of Gen. Nathaniel Greene dated 1785, $400; portrait of twenty-five etchings by Francis Seymour Haden, $1,600; engraving of a portrait of Alexander Hamilton dated 1804, $900; pencil drawing by Alphonse Legros, $510, and an etching by Martin Schongauer, $150. Other sales were a mezzotint of Benjamin Franklin dated 1793, $345, to N. Friedberg; mezzotint of Oliver Goldsmith dated 1770, to Kennedy & Co., $370, and an original painting of George Washington by James Sharples, $1,050, to G. S. Palmer.

Karl Freund's Sale Begun.

Karl Freund's sale of rare textiles, screens, French furniture and other artistic objects was begun yesterday in Clark's art galleries, 5 West Fourth street, and brought $12,158. Architects, actors and collectors were among the bidders. The highest price was $400, brought by a pair of eighteenth century French walnut armchairs, taken by T. Onativia, as agent. Walker & Gillett bid in a walnut armchair of the Louis XVI. period for $280, and Mrs. William H. Dick bought a Louis XV. period six fold screen for $325. Miss Fay Bainter bought a seventeenth century Persian jacket for $40. Other buyers were Mrs. Robert H. L. Lott, Mrs. Vivian Spencer, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, Mrs. Emmet Buel, Mrs. Felix Rosen, Mrs. Walter C. Taylor and Mrs. Stanley Richter.

MISS ELIZABETH C. FRANK MARRIED TO MR. SETH LOW

Nephew of One Time Mayor
Weds Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Frank.

In St. Thomas's Church yesterday afternoon Miss Elizabeth Carrington Frank, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Frank of this city and Glen Cove, L. I., was married to Mr. Seth Low, a son of the late Abbot A. Low and Mrs. Low, and a nephew of the late Seth Low, at one time Mayor of New York and president of Columbia University. It was one of the largest weddings of the spring season, being attended by many relatives and friends. The new nuptials of the church made a fine background for the formal decorations of the chancel, which was massed with pink and white spring flowers and feathery palms of pale green.

The officiating clergymen were the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Sullivan, rector of the church; the Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody of Groton, Mass., and Bishop Chauncey Brewster of Connecticut. The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her away. She wore a gown of white satin made with a court train. Her veil of old rose point lace was worn over another of tulle. She held a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Talbot J. Taylor, Jr., the bride's sister, was her matron of honor and Miss Alice Davidson was the maid of honor. The other bridesmaids were Mrs. J. T. Davidson, who was Miss Dorothy Peabody, a bride of April 18; Miss Allan McLane, Jr.; Misses Jean Fletcher, Katherine Van Ingen, Dorothy Dunbar, Polly Lincoln, Caroline Hicks, Read and Tricella Murdoch. Mr. David B. Grant was the best man. The ushers were Messrs. Allan McLane, Jr.; Archibald McMillan, 24, William Ryle, Huntington, Tenn., Gilbert E. Jones, C. Powers Smith, Cord Meyer, Worthington Davis, Talbot J. Taylor, Jr.; C. Maury Jones, Morris Hadley and Alfred H. Chappell.

The ceremony of the bride and groom was in point of color in keeping with the formal decorations. Those of the matron and maid of honor were of a pale orchid colored satin, and the bridesmaids' gowns were of pale green. The bridesmaids carried large clusters of white and pink and long tassels of pale orchid color completed the costumes. Their hats were of orchid colored straw topped with green feathers. The bride carried a large cluster of pink and white sweets pecked with pale blue snapdragons.

Art Associations to Build a Home

Conference Held on Proposal to Invest $250,000 in Cooperative Structure.

A proposal to build another home for art, with lecture rooms and exhibition galleries, found a warm welcome at a conference of five artists' associations in the Pennsylvania Hotel last night. It was announced that the Art Center, Inc., had received its papers of incorporation and that $250,000 capital would be raised in $10 shares for the purchase and remodeling of two or three houses in the Forties or Fifties, between Sixth and Lexington avenues. Cass Gilchrist, architect, presided.

Charles Dana Gibson, speaking for the Society of Illustrators, said artists' organizations had been wandering about New York for twenty years without a home and it was time for them to sink their differences and take quarters under one roof. Other speakers were W. Frank Purdy, Ida Selitz, Mrs. Ripley Hitchcock, Joseph P. Day and Howard Russell Butler.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mansfield, Mr. and Mrs. W. Frank Purdy, Ida Selitz, Mrs. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Don Barber, Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Fox, Mrs. Joan Henry Hammond and Mrs. Douglas Robinson.

Bonds were offered for sale at the close of the conference, but no report of the sales was made.

The organizations represented in the formation of the Art Center are the American Institute of Graphic Art, Art Alliance of America, National Society of Craftsman, Pictorial Photographers of America, Society of Illustrators and Society of Jewelry Designers.

Mr. Martin Beck's Daughter Married

Miss Helen Beck Becomes the Bride of Mr. James Howard Hoffman.

In the Sherry apartment of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel last night Miss Helen Beck, a daughter of Mr. Martin Beck, of 22 Park avenue, was married to Mr. James Howard Hoffman, by the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, of this city. The ceremony took place under a bower of palms and spring flowers.

Miss Josephine Beck was her sister's maid of honor. The other attendants were Mrs. Herman Cohn, Misses Carolyn Byck, Edith Heymann, Marie Lang, Florence Elsing and Ruth Vinyard. Lucy Sperry was flower girl. Mr. Herman Cohn was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Stephen Ames, Lawrence and Robert Leeds, Charles Meyer, Norman Frank, Bertram Schreier, Charles Hoffman and Donald Samuels. A dinner and dance followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman will go to California on their wedding trip.

$15,925.75 for Forman Books.

The sale of the H. Duxton Forman collection of books and autograph letters was resumed yesterday afternoon and last night in the Anderson Galleries. The total for the four sessions reached $15,925.75. The sale will be concluded the afternoon and to-night. A first edition of Patmore's poems in eighteen volumes was sold for $122.50. A first edition set of the works of Charles G. Rosewell in fourteen volumes brought $142.50. Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach bought an autograph letter of Joseph Severn dated Rome, September 19, 1821, for $120, and a member of Severn's autograph letters for $105. An edition of "Lion and Cynthia or the Revolution of the Golden Cities" was sold for $130 to the Brick Row Print Book Shop.

Miss Fay Bainter Wins at Galatea; Comedy Revived

Benefit Given by Actors Fidelity League—Lester Lonergan, Pygmalion.

KNICKERBOCKER THEATRE-PYGALION AND GALATEA, mythological comedy, by Miss W. S. Gilbert.

Through the Actors Fidelity League the vacation Association benefited by a special matinee at the Knickerbocker Theatre yesterday. The artistic interest of the occasion came from a revival of W. S. Gilbert's mythological comedy "Pygmalion and Galatea." Miss Fay Bainter played the statue, and thus added her name to a long list of predecessors distinguished on the American stage. Miss Julia Arthur was the most recent actress to attempt the role, but her appearance must be a good score of years ago. The name most closely associated with the awakened heroine is, of course, that of the beloved Miss Mary Anderson.

Miss Bainter added, of course, intelligence and considerable charm to her impersonation, and used the technical means of her profession with her customary mastery. In the first act she employed an infantile tone which luckily was modified later in the play. She made most of the familiar points which full value even if her innocence seemed always a little self-conscious, always an assumption rather than the natural result of the comedy which in her eyes had just opened on life. Variety in the part is not easy to express. Miss Bainter's assumption, with high talent from the audience, which is a quality so different from the usual theatrical offering of the day.

The company, assembled but for two performances, acted the piece with a certain understanding of its nature. There was less emphasis than there might have been on the satirical nature of the speeches and occasional exaggeration for the comedy effect. Lester Lonergan was an intelligent Pygmalion and Sidney Toles's young soldier was entertaining if modern. J. W. Ransome's art patron had his familiar humor.

George M. Cohan was called away to Chicago and could not appear, and William Collier, who was to furnish the comedy of the day with him, did not come, do it all alone, and also stopped away. But Miss Ruth Chatterton looked beautiful in Ophelia Down's "The Maker of Dreams" and Miss Blanche Barlowe's singing was well received. The matinee will be repeated on Friday.

TALK ON MRS. STOWE SPLITS GIRLS' SCHOOL

Richmond Institute Faculty
Quits When Ban Is Laid.

Richmond, Va., April 27.—Dispute as to the propriety of a lecture on Harriet Beecher Stowe resulted to-day in the resignation of the entire faculty of the Richmond Institute here.

The lecture engagement was cancelled by the Rev. C. C. Truitt, president of the institute who held that any eulogy of Mrs. Stowe before Southern girls would be out of place. Principal Willis and members of the faculty, composed of men and women graduates of Northern colleges, disagreed with President Truitt and when he refused to rescind his order they voted to submit their resignations, effective Friday.

"Movies" Not Yet a Real Menace to Legitimate Drama

Speakers at Drama League's Luncheon See Various Safeguards.

As the topic for discussion at its last luncheon of the season at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday the Drama League chose the question whether the "movies" were encroaching on the legitimate theatre to the extent of monopolizing it.

John Emerson, motion picture producer, once an actor, and now a writer, told the 200 members and guests that it mattered little whether large motion picture combinations or a couple of the strictly legitimate theatres were the strangulation of the artistic growth of the stage. Actors and authors, he said, were as much opposed to this as were independent managers.

Mr. Emerson, who was a leader of the Actors' Equity Association during the actors' strike, said that if the authors would organize as the players had, they could hold the key to the situation, regardless of any attempt at control from above.

Following a speech along similar lines by his wife and producing partner, Miss Anita Loos, Charles D. Coburn, an independent manager, urged the importance of repertoire theatres. He argued that so long as there were theatres catering to an intelligent section of the public, that section always could get what it wanted, and was taking only what producers offered them.

Miss Phoebe Foster, legitimate actress, while foreseeing a danger that good legitimate plays might be excluded to make place for works designed primarily for "movie" users, declared that the "movie" type, if it proved artistic, would be rejected by the public, which thus would become the factor that would prevent monopoly.

Charles B. Dillingham has bought the Globe Theatre, and held the house at Broadway near Forty-sixth street for ten years under a lease from the Dillingham Theatre Company, in which Howard Gould held the controlling interest. He recently celebrated its tenth anniversary as its occupant he decided to obtain possession of it and called an offer to Mr. Gould.

The purchase price is reported to have been $200,000, consisting of a mortgage for $75,000 and a cash payment of $125,000.

With the theatre proper goes the building at 135 Broadway, which contains the offices and plans have been made to enlarge and remodel these.

Almost all of Mr. Dillingham's musical comedies have started their careers at the Globe. "The Girls from Home," which will come there on Monday next, will be the first to occupy real home ground.

SCHOOLGIRLS IN PLAYS.

Theatrical Entertainment Given for French Fund.

Pupils of the Garment School gave their annual dramatic offering last night in the French Restoration Fund for the rebuilding of school houses in the devastated districts. The audience filled the ballroom theatre. The programme consisted of two plays, "Procs and Cons" and "Neighbors" and a Russian pantomime by Miss Iva B. Kempshall and presented for the first time by the pupils of the school.

The pantomime told the story of a Russian peasant girl, Olga, whom a spell has been cast by Ivan, leader of the wicked Rusniks—the spirits of those who died before they were baptized. The parts of the two principals were interpreted in the dancing of Miss Dorothy Cameron as Olga and Miss Gertrude Owsley as Ivan. There were thirty dancers in the cast. The satire "Procs and Cons" was given by Misses Katharine Hartman and Adrienne Louise Thomson and Adrienne Stokes. In the cast of "Neighbors" were Misses Carolyn Kennedy, Helen Stanley, Janice Feldman, Catherine Bull, Helen Mae Wyck, Augusta Elrich, Edna Washburn, Lucille Roberts, Marjorie Bell, Dorothy Stuart and Ruth Thomas. Miss Dorothy Cameron danced value caprice as an entracte.

"Come-Back Revue" To-night.
